

WAS DIVORCED DID NOT KNOW

TRAVELS ABOUT 2,500 MILES TO SEE HER HUSBAND AND CHILDREN AND FINDS DIVORCE
GRANTED AND CHILDREN

GIVEN INTO FATHER'S CARE

When Mrs. Maude Burch started last week from Seattle, Wash., for Bloomington to get her two children whom she had been separated from for more than two years, she began the long journey of 2,500 miles with a light heart at the thoughts of soon being with her boys again.

When she arrived here yesterday she was surprised to learn that her former husband, Charles Burch had sued her for divorce and had been granted the custody of the children. Mr. and Mrs. Burch formerly lived in Bloomington while Mr. Burch was employed as a clerk in the Urney & Kinser store.

Upon learning that Mr. Burch has the children and that he has since remarried and has two other children by his last wife, Mrs. Burch consulted Atty. H. R. East. She asked to see the divorce complaint that was filed against her and was very much incensed at the charges contained therein, all of which she denied. "If I had only known of this suit I would have come to Bloomington and would have fought the allegations in court," she said.

Mrs. Burch said she left Bloomington for the west five years ago at the direction of her physician who told her she would have to seek a change in climate in order to regain her health. She went to Seattle, Wash., to make her home with her uncle, who is a wealthy ranchman, and who has one of the finest residences in Seattle. She says her husband followed her there bringing the two little boys with him. Mr. and Mrs. Burch lived together in Seattle for nearly a year when there was a separation. After that Mr. Burch remained in Seattle for some time employed in a department store, and frequently came to the home of his wife to see the children. He paid her $6 a week for their support and according to Mrs. Burch, he slipped out of Seattle with them one night without telling her of his plans. She says he 'phoned to her to send the children down to spend the evening with him, promising to have them back by school time the following morning. When they did not return by nine o'clock next morning she communicated with Mr. Burch's employer and was informed that Mr. Burch had resigned and had started back to Bloomington with the boys. Mrs. Burch says she went to see the Prosecutor and was taking steps to make the wires hot in order to stop her husband and regain the children, but as twelve hours had been lost, she was informed that Mr. Burch was already out of the state with the boys and could not be legally stopped.

When Mrs. Burch arrived in Indiana this week she learned that Mr. Burch is now in business at Amo, Hendricks county, where he conducts a general store. She went to that place and was cordially greeted by Mr. Burch, but when she asked for the children, she says she was denied the request. She returned to Bloomington yesterday and is stopping at the Bowles hotel, and states that she will probably take further legal steps to regain her children.—Bloomington World.

George-Key Nuptials.

The Methodist parsonage was the scene of a quiet wedding on Sunday, January 21st, at 1 o'clock, when Miss Ruth Key, formerly of Putnam county, became the wife of W. Russell George. The Rev. J. G. Vermillion, also a former Putnam county man, pastor of the Methodist church, and uncle of the bride, officiated in the presence of relatives and a few close friends. Miss Golda Vermillion, acted as bridesmaid, and Charles W. Faylor as groomsmen. The ceremony, which was characterized by its brevity and simplicity, was followed by a dinner in honor of the event. The bride has made her home with Rev. Vermillion of Paonia, Colo. for the past year and a half and during her residence there has been most popular as well as active in church work. Her husband has been well known in Paonia for three years. It is with much pleasure that their host of friends learn that these splendid young people will make their home in Paonia for the present.—Paonia (Colo.) Exchange.

ELKS WILL HOLD A BIG CARNIVAL

DATE FOR TWO DAYS EVENT
WILL BE DECIDED BY COMMITTEE WHICH WILL REPORT AT MEETING NEXT MONDAY.

MINSTREL SHOW ONE STUNT

A meeting of the Elks Minstrel committee last night, it was decided to hold a Carnival this year, instead of a Minstrel show. The regular annual minstrel show, however, will be one of the features of the Carnival. At the meeting last night a committee of eight was appointed to make arrangements for the date for the carnival. This committee will report at a meeting to be held next Monday night.

The Carnival will be one of the biggest stunts of its kind ever pulled off in Greencastle. There will be many attractions, such as the Minstrel Show, a Vaudeville Show and booths of all kinds will be arranged. There will be plenty of amusement for all.

The Carnival probably will be held in the Elks hall and the Calumet hall and Odd Fellows hall on the floor above. It is planned to hold the event two evenings and there will be continual amusement by all of the side shows each evening.

DANVILLE HAS A MAN AGED 6,300 YEARS

From Danville, Indiana, comes word that another "lost identity" man has been found near there and the police are in a quandary as to what shall be done with him. The man was found hiding in a straw stack near Lizton. He had been there three days without food during that time. He says he is 6,300 years old and that he owns every insane asylum in the country.

THE "REAL THING" FROM DIFFERENT VIEW POINTS

The fight that is going on among the Republican factions brings out some interesting things. Now, here is the Indianapolis Sun (Roosevelt-Beveridge organ) which prints the following editorial observations:

Mr. Taft should get out of this race for president. He should know by this time that the people of this country do not want him for president again and that by persisting in his candidacy he not only will bring humiliation to the party, but he will bring, if possible, additional humiliation to himself. Mr. Taft has not made good. He has betrayed the American people and whatever the federal office holders, for the most part personally friendly to Theodore Roosevelt may accomplish towards obtaining for him another nomination, he will be beaten ingloriously at the polls and the Republican party will be so helplessly crippled in making a forlorn fight that only the counter blunders of Democracy will restore it to favor in a decade. The American people actually know little about the "real Mr. Taft." If they knew the whole truth they would rise in their wrath and deliver to him a nation-wide rebuke at the Chicago convention. Theodore Roosevelt could tell an interesting story of the people's betrayal if he would speak. He could tell a story fraught with details heretofore but vaguely understood. In due time Theodore Roosevelt will speak out the whole truth.

Every one knows that Roosevelt will speak, but will he "speak out the whole truth" about Taft? And if he should do so, will Taft speak out the whole truth about Roosevelt? If Taft and Roosevelt can only be induced to pursue this honest course it is very clear that both of them will "get out of this race for president" by one process or another. But even without this help the people are sufficiently informed as to both the "real Mr. Taft" and the "real Mr. Roosevelt."

THE FUNERAL OF MRS. DOBELL

WAS LARGELY ATTENDED BY RELATIVES AND FRIENDS, AT THE LATE HOME OF THE DECEASED, THIS AFTERNOON AT 2:00 O'CLOCK.

BURIAL IN FOREST HILL

The funeral services of Mrs. J. T. Dobell, whose death occurred Monday morning, were held at the late home of the deceased on East Anderson street at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A large number of the relatives and friends of Mrs. Dobell, who was one of the best known and most loved women of Greencastle, were in attendance. Dr. H. A. Gobin, assisted by Dr. K. W. Robbins, officiated. In respect to the memory of Mrs. Dobell all classes of DePauw University were dismissed this afternoon.

Dr. Gobin read a sketch of the life of Mrs. Dobell and told of his own acquaintance with her. Dr. Robbins led in prayer. A quartet composed of Miss Eva Smith, Miss Alice Potter, Raymond Jackson and Charles Anderson, sang "Lead Kindly Light," "Come Ye Disconsolate" and "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again."

After the services at the home the remains of the deceased were taken to Forest Hill cemetery for interment. The pall-bearers were Dr. W. V. Brown, Professor R. B. von KleinSmid, Silas A. Hays, John R. Miller, Walter Buckingham and Bruce Kixmiller, the latter two being students of the University.

Russell Cooper, of Indianapolis, was here today to attend the funeral services of his aunt, Mrs. J. T. Dobell. Mr. Cooper formerly resided in Greencastle.

OFFICER STONE AND MARSHAL
JOHNS ARREST TRAMPS RIDING
ON EXPRESS CAR OF VANDALIA
PASSENGER TRAIN
LAST NIGHT.

EXPRESS CAR DOOR OPEN

In response to a telegram from Indianapolis saying that several desperate characters were abroad the west-bound Vandalia train No. 11, and that a hold-up was feared, Marshal Johns and Officer Stone met the train at the local station last night and arrested four tramps who were riding on the blind baggage and the back end of the express car. One of the tramps made his escape by leaping aboard the train when it left the station. Another member of the gang, who escaped arrest by jumping from the top of the express car, was arrested about 1 o'clock this morning by Officer Stone, Chief-of-Detectives Lauderback of the Vandalia was notified and he came here immediately. He asked the local officers to place charges of vagrancy against the men until he could investigate the affair.

The crew of the engine saw the men before the train was out of Indianapolis, and made arrangements for the officers to meet the train here. When Marshal Johns and Officer Stone met the train they found two of the men on the blind baggage and the other three at the rear end of the baggage car. The three at the rear of the car climbed on top in an attempt to avoid detection. Officer Stone, however, saw them and climbed up after them. One of the three took a rather desperate chance to escape and leaped from the top of the car.

Stone grasped the other two and helped them down and into the hands of Marshal Johns. The four men were lined up and the officers began searching them for weapons. Just then the train conductor gave the engineer the signal to start and the train began to move away.

The man farthest from the two officers, seeing it possible to escape, leaped between two of the cars and climbed to a safe seat on the coupling. The officers, fearing the other three prisoners might attempt escape, did not try to follow the fellow.

No weapons were found on the men. They were placed in a cab however, and taken to jail. Chief-of-Detectives Lauderback questioned the prisoners this morning. After questioning them he requested the local officials to keep them in jail until Monday, to await an investigation.

When the train arrived at Terre Haute it was discovered that the door on the express car to the blind baggage had been opened. The door was locked when the train left Indianapolis, it is supposed and it is thought the men in jail might know something of the affair. It is not believed that any express was taken. The officers at Effingham, Ill., arrested two more suspicious characters on the train when it arrived there. The train is the same one on which an attempted hold-up occurred near Liggett, just west of Terre Haute, several weeks ago.

The four men in jail this morning gave their names and addresses to Deputy Sheriff Kelley. They are Erskin Ballard, age 20, Evansville; George L. Abshire, age 18, Evansville; Fred L. Cowan, age 20, Terre Haute, and John Huhn, age 23, Indianapolis. The names and addresses, though, may be fictitious. Huhn is the man who jumped from the top of the express car and who was later arrested by Officer Stone.

Major Cullen, Michael Dolin, Gordon Martin, Charles Broadstreet, J. H. James, Judge James P. Hughes, Dr. King, Curtis Hughes, Ferd Lucas, James L. Randel and Russell Newgent were among the Greencastle men who went to Indianapolis this afternoon to attend the Jefferson Day banquet and to hear William Jennings Bryan speak.

Aid the Enumerators.

The annual school enumeration is now progressing and the work will continue until completed, which will not be later than the last of this month. All the children between the ages of six and twenty-one will be registered.

The local school authorities are hoping that the citizens of the county will help the enumerators in every way they can to enable them to secure the names correctly and to secure all the names of the children who reside in the city. The state board of instruction gives the local school board so much money for the teaching of each individual that appears in the enumeration so the more names that are turned in the office of the state superintendent, the lower the taxes will be for the support of the local schools. It has generally been understood that the more names that were turned in the higher the taxes would be, but that is not the case, as the more names that are placed on record the more money will be given to Putnam county for the support of the local schools.

A String Tied to It.

The Democratic national convention which will assemble in Baltimore June 25 will be composed of 1694 delegates. Under the rules which will govern this convention a two-thirds vote is necessary to nominate. This means that the candidate who wins must get 729 votes. An active campaign for the nomination is being made by Wilson of New Jersey, Harmon of Ohio, and Clark of Missouri. Richard Croker, former leader of the New York Democracy, and a wise old owl when it comes to political predictions, says that neither of the active candidates can secure the nomination and that Marshall is the most available of the compromise possibilities. Governor Marshall has made his position clear. "I am not a presidential candidate in the sense of actively seeking the nomination," he has said. "Indiana Democracy say they want me and I believe they mean it. But I have no headquarters, no campaign manager and no campaign money. I do not regret that I have no money to use in seeking the nomination. I would not be under any obligations to any man or set of men through money contributed to bring about my nomination, for even a little child knows there is a string tied to it in such cases. I haven't any money of my own and I wouldn't take it from others." The national convention is not far in the future and the Indiana Democracy has a right to expect the recognition that it has so long deserved.

BASE BALL MAN BADLY INJURED

GORDON THOMAS, SON OF MR.
AND MRS. FRANK THOMAS,
RECEIVED BROKEN ANKLE IN PRACTICE ON MCKEEN FIELD
YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

WAS SLIDING TO BASE

Gordon Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, and a freshman in DePauw University, received a broken right ankle during base ball practice on McKeen Field yesterday afternoon. He was taken to his room at the Delta Tau fraternity house on East Seminary street immediately after the accident. Dr. Sudranski and Dr. Tucker reduced the fracture and placed the injured limb in a plaster cast. While the injury is not serious, it will keep him from attending school for several weeks. Thomas was making good on the DePauw baseball squad and his loss will be felt. He will be unable to get back in the game this season.

Thomas was practicing batting and running the bases when the accident occurred. He had just hit the ball and was attempting to reach second base. When he neared the base he saw that he would have to slide to reach it in safety. When he started to slide the spikes in his right shoe caught in the ground, twisting the ankle and fracturing the limb. The injury will keep him in bed for at least three weeks.

The Circus Auctioneer.

An auctioneer who had grown gray in the work had been urged repeatedly to retire.

"Not till I get a chance to auction off a circus," he said. "That is the height of my ambition. It is the point every good auctioneer works for. Not many attain it, because there are not enough circuses to go around, but so long as a man wields the hammer he clings to the hope of getting a fling at a circus some day. I can't explain the fascination."

"Men who have sold circuses at auction tell me that it requires no more ability to sell lions and elephants than bonbon dishes. Maybe they are right, but circus managers must think otherwise, for of all the people who have goods to dispose of at auction, the circus man is most particular about the qualifications and experience of his auctioneer."

New Breakfast Food

Representative Mann of Chicago recently stopped to inspect some street construction work in the Windy City. His attention seemed to be particularly drawn to a large iron cylinder that was being constantly turned over a fire for the purpose of heating gravel.

"What do you make of that, Mann?" asked a friend who chanced along just then.

"I think they must be rolled pebbles," answered Mr. Mann. "Some new kind of breakfast food adapted for those Italian immigrants."

An Easier Job.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Roses and Cherubs

By Lawrence Alfred Clay

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"And, mother, you ought to have seen that room when we got through with it!"

"But don't get excited, Cherry," cautioned her mother.

"How can I help it when I'm going to earn fifty dollars a week and at the end of a year take us both to Europe!"

"You mustn't be too sure about it," "O, but I am. Sadie said I was a natural born artist. Why, I was painting a cherub within half a day!"

Miss Cherry Kinsell was a happy-looking young girl. Her mother was a widow with a moderate income, and the daughter had often wished that she could find some congenial employment to earn her own way.

Nothing could come of it until she had paid her chum, Sadie Newhall, a visit at Fall River. Fall River is noted for its great cotton mills; also for new and startling ideas. The idea that wouldn't come to Miss Cherry at Albany came to her before she had been in Fall River two days.

The Newhall mansion had a large and liberal garret. That was before the lumber trust got in its work. Such a garret nowadays would cost as much as a steam yacht. Of course Miss Sadie took Miss Cherry up to see that garret with its cobwebs, old trunks, broken chairs and romantic atmosphere. Miss Cherry gazed around her and felt inspiration clawing at the roots of her hair. A few hours later she had developed the grand idea. The garret, which looked to be two miles long by a mile in width, was to be decorated.

The trunk was hauled into a corner and paints and brushes bought, and the circus opened with grand overture. The performance lasted three weeks, and the work went on days and nights and Sundays. Young men called, but the young ladies were not at home. The minister called to pay his respects to the visitor and ask after the heathen of Albany, but he didn't go to see her. She was just beginning to paint the ears on her third cherub, and she wouldn't have stopped work for all the good men in the cotton town.

The two artists couldn't quite agree as to the general plan of decoration, and so they did a very sensible thing. They divided off the garret and took about a mile apiece as a share. The groundwork of one part was a vivid green and the other a vivid red. There was to be no monotony up there. Miss Sadie decided to decorate her mile with roses, and Miss Cherry went in for cherubs. What they did agree on, and it was artistic to the core, was that the cherubs should seem to be trying to overtake the roses as they fled around the garret.

It was no easy matter to try to paint a cherub on the plastered wall of a garret while standing on the head of an empty barrel that threatened to collapse at any moment. One who has not done this has not felt the real joys that now and then wallow the soul of a born artist. Cherub after cherub was developed by the hands of genius.

Some smiled and some wept. Some walked and some flew. Some grinned and some frowned. Some of the flyers had legs long enough for clothes-props, while others had legs sawed off at the knees to save cloth in making up the trousers. By what appeared to be an error of judgment at first, but which later on turned out to be a happy thought, some of the cherubs were painted standing on their heads. This broke up what might have been a monotony. There's many a family portrait by an artist that has been on the job for twenty years that would look better if turned bottom side up.

Days and days—from ten to fourteen hours a day and no strike talk, and the garret was finally finished. One first coming into it thought he had struck Paradise. After a look around he thought he had struck the other place. The cherubs were a sunflower yellow on the green ground. They stood out. They beckoned. They flew and frisked and gambled. It was a free exhibition, with pink lemonade and peanuts thrown in. Nothing is said about the roses because they might have been hollyhocks when finished.

Finished at last and praised by every member of the family, even to the baby, Miss Sadie insisted that her young man must be shown. He was a solemn young man who labored in an undertaker's shop, and he could read all the jokes in a family almanac and sigh over them, but when led into that garret by the car he gave a snort like a river horse.

"Good Lord, but have you swallowed your gum!" exclaimed Miss Sadie as she thumped him on the back.

The solemn young man lied about it. He said he had. He snorted several times more, and then he set in and told a such whopping big lie that Satan wrote his name down on the records. He said the effect of that garret on him was soothing, placid, restful and complacent. He said there was no mistaking those cherubs for live codfish. He said the expression of each and every one of them was even more natural than life. He said that some low-down, beetle-browed villain might declare they had goose wings instead of those of angels, but let him come face to face with that man and the lie should be crammed down his throat.

What the solemn young man said about Miss Sadie's roses doesn't matter, as they were married a year later, and he never let her paint another.

Miss Cherry returned home to take up decorating. She had graduated in the art. She was all there when it came to the cherub business. The solemn young man wrote down to the city to a bachelor friend of his, and the bachelor called at the Kinsell house and told Miss Cherry that he wanted his billiard room decorated. When she called to see it next day he gave her carte blanche to go ahead as she thought best. Everything was to be moved out and the key given to her, and she could use her own taste. He would be away for a month, and she would be undisturbed.

In five minutes the girl-artist had decided on just how she would decorate, but she didn't give it away. No one saw her work until it was finished.

The groundwork was the same as the Fall River garret. The cherubs this time had white bodies and blue wings and legs. Whether walking or flying each one carried a billiard cue under his arm. Between each two cherubs was a glass of the foamy and a pile of billiard balls. Nothing was left to the imagination, nor was there anything to which the most fastidious could object.

The old bachelor returned home at night just as the last view had been painted on the last cherub. He let himself into the house and turned on the gas in the billiard room. One long look, and then there was a heavy fall. The housekeeper and the valet got him to bed, and after an anxious hour the doctor said he would pull through. Then he went to look at the billiard room himself. When he came back he was deathly pale and his knees were shaking.

"Who—who did it?" he gasped.

"A mighty good-looking young lady," was the reply.

"But you can't—can't stand it!"

"No."

"You'll have to sell or move!"

"Yes."

"I can't guarantee your sanity if you stay here."

"I couldn't expect you to."

"White bodies and blue legs!"

"I—I saw them."

"And carrying fence rails under their arms or wings!"

"And yaller groundwork!"

"Look here, Stevens," said the doctor, "you've got to do something."

"Commit suicide!"

"No. You've got to fall in love with your decorator and marry her, and then burn the house down so as to get rid of those cherubs without hurting her feelings."

"Is there no other way, doctor?"

"None, whatever."

The house wasn't burned down, but ten months later Miss Cherry Kinsell became Mrs. Charles Stevens, and the day after the wedding an explosion in the billiard room knocked the plaster off the walls and the poor cherubs into cocked hats.

Deer Springs Through Parlor Window.

A small deer came to an untimely end early this afternoon following severe injuries sustained when the animal jumped through the parlor window at the home of W. Griswold, Jefferson street. The little deer appeared on Jefferson street about 12 o'clock. No one knows whence he came. He became frightened and jumped through the window at Mr. Griswold's house.

The family drove him out through another window and he again cut himself. Then he ran across to Ward street pursued by several boys, and was finally rounded up in a yard on Squire street.

The damage to the Griswold parlor and windows will amount to about $50. The only redress the family has is an appeal to the next legislature or some succeeding one.—Hartford Times.

"Horror Tea" Is the Latest.

The latest novelty in "at home" is a "horror tea." "Please bring your pet horrors" is the invitation sent out to friends. If you have been invited to a "horror tea," here are some ideas as to what you might take with you. A man would cause great amusement by wearing an arrangement of unpaid bills, stitched on his coat. Ladies could bring toy insects, imitation mice, or any animal which they particularly dislike.

Commencement Days Are Coming.

Only forty days of school remain. Two months pass rapidly and are soon gone. Much remains to be done both by pupils and teachers. The pupils understand this, and the large majority fully appreciate it. The superintendent and teachers have already begun to plan all of the affairs connected with the closing of the year's work. This is necessary because of the extra burdens that join themselves to each ordinary task at the close.

Much to the gratification of the patrons of the schools, no doubt, will come the announcement that all of the Commencement Literary Functions will this year be held in Meharry Hall. Some one has asked why anything extraordinary at the close of school? This does not need an answer; for it is answered in child-nature. Even pupils of the third grade feel slighted if they are not allowed to have an examination like the older ones. When they are older, they will willingly forego the examination, but they will wish to do something like the high school pupils do, and when they reach the high school, they will have to be held in check, if they do not imitate every college function.

The Juniors will tender the Seniors a reception April 18, 1912, in Ben-Hur hall. They have issued a unique invitation card, stating the who, the where, the when, the why, the etc. Although the card gives much information, doubtless they have a hope within them that they did not state.

The Eighth Graders will appear in their annual entertainment April 19. Owing to the fact that the D. A. R. has offered a prize for the best essay by a member of this class on some topic of the Revolution, this function naturally takes on a patriotic character. "Our Flag" being the subject this time, more than ever will the patriotic sentiment prevail. The essays are now in the hands of the judges. Who wins? Attend and you shall see.

To the Tax Payers of Putnam County.

Notice is hereby given that the taxes levied for State, County, School, Ditch and other purposes, in Putnam County, Indiana, are due and payable at the Treasurer's office of said county, in the City of Greencastle, in full, or at the option of the taxpayer, one-half including Road Tax in full, on or before the first Monday of May, 1912, and the remaining one-half on or before the first Monday of November, 1912. When so much as one-half of the taxes charged to a taxpayer are not paid on or before the first Monday in May, then the whole amount will become due and delinquent, and the penalty attached.

Road Tax Receipts must be presented on or before the first Monday in May as the Road Tax is all included in the first installment. Road Receipts WILL NOT BE TAKEN in payment for second installment of Taxes.

The Treasurer will not be responsible for penalties and charges on delinquent taxes, resulting from any omission of the person paying such tax to state definitely on what property in whose name and what township or corporation it was assessed. The treasurer cannot make reduction in taxes, and cannot refund money after once paid in. All errors must be corrected by the auditor.

Examine your receipt before leaving the office, and see that all your property is described. Particular attention: Those who have lands and lots or other property in more than one township, must see that they have a receipt in full.

Call for property in name of owner, March 1, 1911. Tax duplicates are made up on that day and never change.

We desire to take this opportunity of asking the taxpayers to pay their taxes before the last days of taxpaying. Especially do we urge those who are interested in estates that are to be divided, or may pay part or all the taxes assessed in other names, or may have a question regarding their own assessment of taxes. It takes time to explain and adjust these matters. We cannot do this satisfactorily with the limited time of the last few days of taxpaying.

Misquotation.

It is very surprising to find in the Charlotte Observer this misquotation of an old phrase, "Everything was lovely and the goose was hanging high." This is the way the uninformed commonality have come to write it, but in the Tar Heel country they know better. The right rendering is "the goose honks high," as the wild goose does when the weather is fine, or, in other words, when "everything is lovely."—Nashville Banner.

Sane Philosophy.

About the sanest philosophy any woman can have is to aim to make the most of each day as it comes along and not borrow trouble from the future or bemoan the regretful past. AROUND THE CAMP FIRE

INCIDENT AT WALKER'S FORD

Troops Were Compelled to Cross Clinch River, Filled With Ice and Water to Their Waists.

In a recent issue Comrade Sample gives an account of a midwinter expedition into the North Carolina mountains, in which he makes mention of Walker's Ford, that brings to my mind many things that transpired there. I was second lieutenant of Company F, One Hundred and Eighteenth Indiana, that went to the relief of our cavalry, which was out of ammunition, and we held the enemy in check until the brigade could come up, writes Rev. S. McNeely of Tiosa, Ind., in the National Tribune. I will never forget the double-quick to the ford, where, after a few minutes' rest, we waded the Clinch river that was filled with ice and water up to our waists.

When we appeared in front of the Johnnies they hardly knew what to think of it. They sent out skirmishers to ascertain our position. Our left wing was formed in an open field, through which ran a stone fence. The Johnnies succeeded in getting possession of the fence, but would come no farther. Our right wing was formed in the timber, the woods sloping up from the road. Artillery was brought into play to shell us out of the woods, but by changing position we managed to keep out of range. They succeeded in getting in on our right flank, and we had to hunt for tall timber.

They pushed us back to the river, where we found the rest of the brigade in position to cover our retreat. After we had formed on the colors the Johnnies formed just across the road from us, and the boys were anxious to fight, but our commander, Col. George W. Jackson, said we had none all that he required of us, and we could rest while the other regiments of the brigade did the fighting. We crossed the river, and went to the support of a battery on the hill, where we lay down in the sun to dry our clothes.

Soon the rest of the brigade were withdrawn across the river, and the Johnnies, thinking they had everything their own way, came rushing down to the ford, but were terribly surprised when they were opened upon by batteries on the river bank and on the hill above. They went back faster than they came. They attempted to plant a gun on top of a knoll commanding our position, but were foiled by a Michigan battery that disabled their guns and it was abandoned. They planted some guns on the hills back from the river, and then ensued an artillery duel until night fell and they retreated.

We spent a very disagreeable night in an open field without fire. We feared the enemy would attack us in the night, but when daylight came we found they were gone for good, so we enjoyed a little rest. But not for very long, as in a day or so following three companies, of which my company was one, were sent out to blockade fords on the Clinch river. We went first to Russell's Ford, where we worked until midnight, felling trees in the road leading to it. Some of the boys crossed the river, and proceeded to help themselves to chickens and potatoes, but did not have time to cook them. After completing our work we confiscated an ox team to haul our traps, and then returned to Tazewell, where we buried some of the boys that were wounded at Walker's Ford.

Gordon Hits Back.

A good story is related of Bob Toombs and Gen. John B. Gordon. General Gordon was a conspicuous figure in the south, and all who have seen him will recall the long scar on his left cheek, the memento of a saber cut received during the war. Gordon was immensely popular, and Toombs was a bit jealous of his popularity. He showed this feeling in a campaign speech when he said: "If that scar were on the back of Gordon's neck instead of on his face he wouldn't be so d-d popular." Gordon heard of this, and a few days later, while addressing a political meeting, got back at the famous orator: "If Toombs had been where I was when I got that scar," said he, "it would be on the back of his neck instead of on his face."

HAD MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE

Miss Fannie's Visit to the City Full of Business of One Sort or Another.

"I suppose, Miss Fannie," said Mrs. Harris to her newly arrived guest from the country, "that you have a good many errands to do here in the city? Some shopping, perhaps?"

"Well, I'd like to look round the stores some, and see if things are much handsomer than the things we have at the Waybridge stores, but I don't know as I'll do much buying. I've always traded in Waybridge, and I guess I always will. But I've got some errands that I'm quite set on doing. For one thing, I want to visit the art institute, and look at the Venus with the broken arm and the Victory without a head that the lady who stayed at my house last summer talked about, when she gave what she called an art evening in the town hall."

"It didn't seem to me that those mutilated images would be worth looking at, but she said they were wonderful, so I just want to see for myself. And then I'm planning to go to the public library and get out the magazine with the end of a story I never finished. Some folks who were staying with me a good many summers ago left quite a lot of that story in some magazines, and I've always been wishing to find out what became of the poor misguided girl in it."

"And is that the extent of your business in town?" smilingly inquired Mrs. Harris.

"There's one more thing I'd like to do, and that is to go to the place where father bought my sewing-machine. He gave it to me the day I was eighteen. I want to tell the head man there that I never was able to use the tucker attachment. It used to just about vex the life out of me. Of course I wouldn't use it now, even if it did work, for I haven't done any fancy sewing for more than fifteen years, but I think the manager of that machine company ought to know that that tucker was dreadfully unsatisfactory."—Youth's Companion.

SAWDUST BREAD FOR HORSES

Also Would Support Human Life in Case of Wheat Famine, Authorities Claim.

"While it has not reached the café bill of fare as yet and probably never will do so, sawdust bread is being made in large quantities in Berlin," says Henry G. Butler of London in the Detroit Free Press. "One bakery is turning out 20,000 loaves daily, and it is being fed to horses, making a substantial feed for them. The sawdust is fermented and chemically treated and then it is mixed with one-third rye flour, and the dough is shaped into loaves and baked like any other bread."

"Men who have tasted the sawdust bread say that it is not at all bad, and while the bakers do not intend it for consumption by the people they assert that in case of a famine it would come in very handy."

"In various parts of the world the bread is made from trees. The pitch of the saw palm furnishes a white flour and natives of Molucca island make a bread from it. In British America the inner bark of the pine tree is ground and mixed with oat flour by the Indians and in some places they use this bark without the addition of a flour."

Singular Inscription.

Under the Temple clocks, in London, is a singular inscription, the origin of which was an accident. Nearly 200 years ago a workman was employed to repair and put a new face upon the clock, and when his work was nearly done, he asked the officials of the Temple for an appropriate motto to carve upon its base. They promised to think of one, and week after week he came for their decision, but was always put off.

One day he found them at dinner. "What motto shall I put on the clock, your lordship?" he asked of a learned judge.

"Oh, go about your business!" his honor cried, angrily.

"A very suitable motto, for a lazy, dawdling gang," the clockmaker muttered, as he retired. Then he had carved on the base, "Go about your business!"

Discretion an Asset.

In this country constipation has been created at times by discrimination against men over thirty-five seeking employment from railway and other corporations. In England there are employers who hardly credit individuals under thirty-five with having attained the age of discretion. It is interesting to note that the British postoffice department, which has taken over the operation of all the telephones in the country, is considering the advisability of replacing young women operators by older women, especially widows. It is held that the older women have steadier nerves and are better fitted to deal with fractious subscribers.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Tarnished Regimental Colors.

Through the efforts of Lord Campbell, who is known to take great interest in all regimental colors, there were discovered two or three years ago in a pawnshop the flags of the Fifty-fifth (Westmoreland) regiment. These colors date as far back as 1760, and there is little doubt that they had been hidden away in the dark recesses of the pawn-broking establishment for over a century.—London Mail.

"Clean Up the Bowels and Keep Them Clean"

There are many remedies to be had for constipation, but the difficulty is to procure one that acts without violence. A remedy that does not perform by force what should be accomplished by persuasion is Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets. After using them, Mr. N. A. Vaddell, 315 Washington St., Waco, Tex., says: "Almost all my life I have been troubled with constipation, and have tried many remedies, all of which seemed to cause pain without giving much relief. I finally tried Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and found them excellent. Their action is pleasant and mild, and their chocolate taste makes them easy to take. I am more than glad to recommend them."

"Clean up the bowels and keep them clean" is the advice of all physicians, because they realize the danger resulting from habitual constipation. Do not delay too long, but begin proper curative measures.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are a new remedy for this old complaint, and a great improvement over the cathartics you have been using in the past. They taste like candy and work like a charm. A trial will convince you.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists at 25 cents a box containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory after trial, return the box to your druggist and he will return your money. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

The Greencastle street cleaning force recently spent several days cleaning Seminary street. The trash, debris and dust was carefully swept to each side of the street and shoveled into small piles. The piles of trash are still there, but each day sees them more scattered and rapidly getting back into the center of the street, where the force so carefully swept and shoveled it from. A few hours use of a wagon and one or two men would not only do away with the piles of debris, but would keep it from going back into the street, only to be again swept up by the street force at a future date. A little thought and good judgment by some one would not only save the city the money which will be expended soon for again cleaning the street, but would do away with unsightly piles of paper, bricks and debris. The same condition can be found on some street in the city at almost any time.

Attend to your Accident and Health Insurance before you leave for vacation. Harry Maxwell, agent.

The report of the session showed 147 members now enrolled in regular standing three accessions having been made during the year. The trustees and deacons have had much to do during the year, as well as the elders. The Sabbath school report showed great progress along all lines. The Woman's Missionary Society has given $24 to the missionary causes. The women of the church have labored hard and earnestly to better financial and social conditions. The pastor stated that the per cent. of children and youth present at preaching services is about 33. The per cent. of non-church members in the morning service is about 20, evening 25 per cent. Pastor has preached 103 sermons in past year 79 of them in Greencastle, and conducted 25 prayer meetings of the church. He has made about 375 calls on families of the church, students and others, not counting those where he found no one at home. Special meetings have been held, special days observed, and the spiritual condition of the church is fairly good. The pastor has emphasized the evangelistic note in his preaching.
